Miss Mary Warner, of near town, had the misfortune last week to lose by death her fine buggy mare.

I need money and must have it. I will give bargains in all departments for thirty days. Come and see me. Mrs. ESTILL.

The oyster supper given by the ladies of the Christian Church last Friday night at the Court-house was a moderate success.

The banks and most of the business houses will be closed today. The drugstores, groceries and saloons will keep semi-open house as usual.

I must raise $500 in the next thirty days. All persons who have money to spend will do well to call on me. I mean business. Mrs. D. S. ESTILL.

There will be a box supper at Washington Branch school-house Saturday night, December 12, for the benefit of the church. Everybody is invited.

BEFORE AND AFTER.—During the late campaign the sale of Courier-Journals fell off to nearly nothing in this town, and the Cincinnati Enquirer held sway. Since the election the Courier-Journal has regained its circulation, and the Enquirer is so little in demand that the young man who sells them tells us he thinks he will throw up his agency, as it is scarcely profitable any longer.

WITHDRAWS.—Caleb S. Battif has withdrawn from the race for the Democratic nomination for jailer. He says that politics is in such a confused state that he feels that he wouldn't be doing himself justice to participate in a struggle for the nomination now. He is highly grateful to his many friends for their support and words of encouragement. Caleb is a popular fellow and had a strong following. He is young yet and his friends may have a chance to help him to an office in more auspicious times.

TURNPIKE COMMISSION.—County Judge W. S. Gudgell has appointed Judge John D. Young, Daniel Harper, J. J. Nesbitt and G. W. Stanton, and will probably name some one from Bethel or Sharpsburg, precincts, to compose a commission to confer with the stock-holders of Bath Co. turnpike companies in regard to the purchase of their stock. When the cost of purchasing the roads is determined the question of the issuance of bonds to pay for the roads will probably be submitted to the voters, in accordance with the law.

CAPT. TOM HENRY DEAD.—M. D. Faris was at Mt. Sterling Monday when a dispute came that Capt. Tom Henry died Monday morning at Hazel Green. Capt. Henry was a prominent man. He was captain in the Confederate army and was elected one term Clerk of Kentucky Court of Appeals. He formerly resided at West Liberty, removing from there to Mt. Sterling a year or two ago. He was married twice. His second wife, a daughter of the late Col. John Tom Hazlrigg, survives. Capt. Henry was a man of most engaging manners and was highly popular wherever well known.

O RARE BEN BIGSTAFF.—Ben B. Bigstaff, the Sunday-school evangelist, of Tallega, Lee county, is the sort of friend the tolling news paper man erects on a pedestal. His heart and pays unceasing care to Poor Lo.—Press Jackson has a contract to build a section of the turnpike from Salt Lick to Young's Springs. He has shanty built on Henry Wills' farm about one mile from Salt Lick Station, for the use of his hands. Last week while gathering rock for macadamizing purposes they unearthed an Indian grave on Wills' farm from which were taken several pieces of iron-glass, arrow heads, and stone implements, evidently used in dressing skins in process of tanning. The relics from the Indian grave are in possession of Mr. Wills and Press Jackson. But Mr. Wills says that poor old Lo, so the turnpike hands declare, has resented the desecration of his grave to such an extent that he has left his happy hunting grounds and frightened the boys until they positively refuse to longer occupy the shanty for sleeping quarters. The "Big Injun's" ghost, they say, has been prowling about the shanty at night and disturbing their slumbers.

TOBACCO REPORT.—EXPRESSLY ON THE OUTLOOK BY J. S. PHELPS & CO., PLASTERWAREHOUSE.—Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21, 1896.—Since our last report we have had quite an active and strong market for all good and fine old leaf in sweet order. We sold during the week quite a number of hogsheads of smooth bright and bright red leaf from $18.25 to $22. We feel sure these prices are from $1.50 to $3 per hundred better than we could have done with the same tobacco during October. The common grades were offered very freely during the week and on Thursday and Friday showed a decided irregularity and sold three or four bids lower than they did last week. In new tobacco very little doing. The sales for the week amounted to 136 hogsheads. The quality was poor, showing a sad lack of body and a great deal of it having a deadish, horse hair appearance. The color has not been disappointing, nearly all the bright showing some aged hickory-leaf color, and no red instead of being clear bright is a dingy, muddy color. Only six or eight hogsheads out of the entire could be classed from medium to good, and they sold from seven to eleven dollars.

We believe these farmers who are fortunate enough to have crops of clear, uniform color with some hickory and that rich, oily appearance are the ones who will burn some powder. I haven't tried my luck this fall, but I feel as though I could miss as well as ever did.

Your friend,
J. R. MASTERSON.

CHILES GOODMASTER.—An average of about one fashionable wedding per year is solemnized at the Christian Church in Owingsville. As the forms and observances at such marriages vary perceptibly but little from year to year a detailed report of one ceremony must of necessity resemble those previously reported. However, the wedding of Mr. Richard A. Chiles and Miss Mary B. Goodpaster about 8 o'clock p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 18th, 1896, was a very elegant and impressive affair and on its individual merits deserves as extended a notice as our information will permit. Besides if a copy of this issue should be any possibility survive for a century it would be most interesting to this generation's posterity to read of how their great-grandance conducted that most interesting of social compacta—a fashionable wedding.

The last previous ceremony solemnized at that church was that of the present bride's sister, Miss Jane, to Mr. C. C. Chennault in last December. The Christian Church is a remarkably handsome little church for a country town of the size of Owingsville and it is furnished in a style of comparative luxuriance. For the present occasion the aisles and vacant floor spaces were covered with snowy muslin, and the pulpit platform was prettily set off with potted plants of palms, ferns, alocasia, with smilax running over the rear doorways. The effect was very pleasing. The front seats of the middle tier were marked off with white ribbons, for the use of the relatives and more intimate friends of the contracting parties.

A considerable time before the ceremony all the seats in the church were filled with the invited guests and spectators, and even standing room was very scarce. In fact the attendance was the largest ever known at a wedding here.

Mrs. A. W. Walden presided at the organ and at the entrance of the bridal party her skillful fingers evoked the inspiring strains of the

Mr. Richard A. Chiles is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Chiles, of Mt. Sterling. The father is a wealthy merchant and leading citizen of his town. Richard is an accomplished young lawyer and bids fair to make his mark in the world.

He is highly spoken of by his home people and is popular throughout this section.

A reception was given the bridal party at the home of Mrs. Fannie Goodpaster that evening after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Chiles after the reception that night took the east-bound express train on the C. & O. for a two-weeks' visit to Washington and other cities. It is understood that they will make their home in Mt. Sterling.

Those from a distance who attended the wedding are too numerous to mention. There were so many people strangers to the reporter that no attempt will be made to give their names.

Roger Hoffman, of Mt. Sterling, was registered at the Owings House Friday.

Jim Ross has returned from a visit to relatives at Steptone and Preston.

Miss Louie Andrews, of Flemingsburg, is the guest of Mrs. E. H. Goodpaster.

THE FAITH OF CHILDHOOD.

A sturdy youngster, scarcely five,
A truer knight was never alive,
One day had come to visit me,
And stayed with us till after tea.
Then, as the shades of night were come,
I took my little comrade home;
And as we walked I said in jest
To put his courage to a test:
"Stacy, are you afraid of night?"
"Why, no," he said, and then the light
Of laughter shone in his blue eyes.
As he, in well-assured surprise,
Looked up at me and as I drew
His head in mine inquired: "Are you?"

I told him no, but thought perhaps
It was not so with little chaps.
He seemed to ponder my reply,
And then at length, reflectively,
He said: "Some of 'em are, I know,
But what's the use of being so?
I'm not afraid at night, you see,
For God is watching over me."

If there wasn't any God I might
Be frightened when I'm out at night
But mamma says He's always near,
And that I have no cause to fear;
But, here, I'm home, and so, good-by!"
And off he skipped full cheerfully.

Oh, sturdy little friend of mine,
Long life and health and wealth be thine!
May He on whom thy trust is stayed
Remain thy ever-present aid.
For thou, indeed, art safe from harm
When resting on this mighty arm;

It hath no need to rest or sleep
Who keepeth ward o'er Israel's sheep.
Would that I, too, thy trust might know,
When waves beat high and tempests blow.

Would that I, too, in every strait,
When on my doubts despair doth wait,
Might say, with thee, full trustingly:
"I know God watches over me."

CHAPTER IV.—CONTINUED.

She tripped out into the passage, returning with the tray which she put on the table beside Clarence, and then standing back a little, and with her hands tucked soubrette fashion in the tiny pockets of her apron, gazed at him with a mischievous smile.

"If I should happen to be detained," he began with a half smile.

But Jim was struggling with a yawn.

"Thy's all right—don't mind us," he said, stretching his arms.

Clarence had not revealed to Susy

the night before the real object of his journey, nor did Hooker evidently suspect it, yet when he had mounted his horse, he hesitated for an instant—but without extending his hand.

It was impossible not to smile back as he nibbled the crisp Mexican cake and drank the old mission wine. And Susy's tongue trilled an accompaniment to his thanks.

"Lord! it seems so nice to be here—just you and me, Clarence—like in the old days—with nobody naggin' and snooin' round after you. Don't be greedy, Clarence, but give me a enke."

She took one and finished the dregs of his glass.

Then, sitting on the arm of his chair,

she darted a violet ray of half reproach and half mischievousness into his amused and retrospective eyes. "There used to be room for two in that chair,

Clarence."

The use of the old childish diminutive for his name seemed to him as natural as her familiarity, and he moved a little sideways to make room for her with an instinct of pleasure,

as if he had been born to be a mother and a home.

DREADFUL.

The Famine in India Seems Likely to Be General.

Already Grain Riots Are Common—Merchants Will Not Sell Grain, Holding It for a Higher Price—Cattle Being Sold for the Value of Their Hides.

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—The American board of foreign missions has received the following letter from Rev. R. A. Dunn, D.D., dated at Ahmednagar, India, October 16, 1896:

I am just entering on my twenty-third year of missionary service in India. In these years I have been through many perplexities. But the end of the twenty-second year finds me in greater pecuniary embarrassment than ever before in my life. Many is the day that there is not a dollar in the house for the personal expenses, or far off, established, fruitful work, or for our theological seminary, nor any idea of where a dollar is to come from. And in the 23rd year there seems the almost certain prospect of the keenest and most trying suffering and perplexity, caused by widespread famine.

The Indian weather bureau foretold an inadequate rainy season this year. The result is as foretold. From the Himalayas to Cape Comorin the rainy season has been inadequate. In this Ahmednagar district the early rain in June and July was good, but since July there has been no rain and now the prospect is that for eight months more no rain will fall. Inconsequently the first crops have not properly ripened, and for want of later rain the second crops can not even sowed in most places unless there are wells to be depended on. Even the water supply is now low. What will it be a few months hence? I have been through one famine in India, and the recollection of it is most sad. But that was not a general, so much as a comparatively local, famine. The coming famine seems likely to be very general, for nearly the whole population, with its 300,000,000 people. Already grain riots are common. Grain merchants will not sell grain, largely because they know the price will greatly increase, though even now grain is 300 per cent. above normal. So people break open grain shops and granaries and threaten to kill the merchants if they interfere. They say: "We shall have soon to die without grain. If you interfere with our getting your grain, and we kill you in the struggle, it will be all the same." Similarly these people say to the police and courts, "Arrest us for stealing and support us in jail. Then we shall not die from starvation." When quiet, orderly people are aroused to such acts and words, you can imagine their present condition. But this is only the beginning of our troubles. No more rain seems likely to fall for eight full months, no seed can be sown for eight and a half months and no grain ripened for over ten months. What fearful suffering seems to be in store.

Already in some places parents are deserting their children. In some places cattle are being sold for the value of their hides. In many places farmers forcibly drive their cattle into forest reserves and say to forest officers: "You may put these cattle into the forest, then they will at least get fed, and shall not regard forest regulations."

Today morning near the gate of sugar a cart with grain was led by hungry men who held the horses. Some of them had carried off two days my servants were to tell 50 cents were

GREAT BRITAIN

Taking Great Military Preparations in England.—A Good Magazine of Arms and Steel. American Republics.

New York, Nov. 21.—A Sun special agent, M. M. Read, says:

The military preparations going on here in Canada are of a character to move that England is not making ready merely for the defense of Canada against possible attack by the fleet or any European power or combination of powers. They are, moreover, a nation that it is every day more evident that England is creating in Canada a great place of arms against the American republic.

So little attention is given by the American press to Canada and the importance of the policy pursued by the party that has been in power for over forty years that it may come as a surprise to them to learn that it is seriously believed here that not only can Canada hold her own against the United States with the help of France, but that it is only a question of time as to when a large part of the New England states and a portion of the state of New York will be asked for admission into the Canadian confederation.

Reinforcements for the regiments in garrison Halifax and Bermuda are on their way out from England, which will raise them to their full war strength. In connection with the warlike preparations England is making in Canada, it is noteworthy that some of the papers that have been most insistent in their language toward the United States now deplore the idea that they can possibly be directed against them. They are only intended for a possible war with Russia and France. What the preparations going on for armament vessels on the upper lakes has to do with Russia or France, requires an impartial mind to discern.

According to a cablegram received at the Pacific cable conference now sitting in London will no longer issue reports of its proceedings. The reason given for this is the jealousy which the movement creates in other countries, notably so says the cablegram, in France and the United States. The Canadian commissioners, it seems, assured the inspectors that the idea that has been created that the new Canadian government was likewise toward the United States an entire mistake; that on the contrary they had done quite in strictness to justice in the heartiest manner. "Because of the high premium ends to be served by the cable."

Anleeping Couple Committee Stole in Hotel at Valley City, N. D.

VALLEY CITY, N. D., Nov. 21.—A well dressed couple arrived in Valley City, N. D., Thursday night, registered at the hotel and retired. Friday afternoon their room was broken open and they were found lying across the bed. A half empty bottle of Prussic acid was found on a table. A letter stating that money enough would be found on their persons to bury them and that no questions should be asked as to their death.

Mr. Newkirk, N. D., Nov. 21.—The news of the elopement of Mrs. A. C. Swain, of this place, with Frank Addison, of Baltimore, Md., which occurred Wednesday, had been suppressed on account of the high respect in which the swain family is held in this community. The couple stopped at a Valley City hotel, registering as man and wife under an assumed name, and were found dead in bed Friday, having eaten. The dying wife was about 40 years of age, the mother of four children, one a daughter of 18 years old, a son one of the world's best known lawyers. Addison was about 30 years of age.

AGRICULTURE.

The Fourth Annual Report of Secretary Norton.

The Inspection of Animals Intended for Food. The Cost Should Be Paid for by the Packers. The Distribution of Seeds Taxed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—In his fourth annual report the secretary of agriculture shows that with $1,000,000 which may be saved from the appropriations for the current fiscal year, there will have been converted back into the treasury since March 7, 1894, over $2,000,000.

That this great economy was effected without any loss of efficiency he attributes in a large degree to the improvement of the personnel of the force under the civil service rules.

The more step Secretary Morton deems necessary to complete the system of civil service in his department. This is the appointment of a director in charge of bureaus and scientific investigations who shall be designated to serve as acting secretary in case of the absence simultaneously of the secretary and assistant secretary.

He declares that the chiefs of the scientific bureaus and divisions and their assistants do the actual thinking and reasoning for the development of agricultural science, and adds that the persons are not adequately compensated.

He states that during the past few years no less than 32 skilled experts in the department service have left to take positions in institutes of learning at salaries averaging fully 50 per cent. higher than they were getting from the government.

The inspection of animals intended for food is treated at length. Mr. Morton urges that government inspection should be extended to all animals intended for human food, whether for consumption in the United States or abroad, but he maintains that cost of this inspection should be paid by the packers.

The total consumption of meat in Great Britain for the year was 1,000,000 tons, 75 per cent. of which was produced at home, the remaining 25 per cent. of which was produced abroad. The live meat arriving in Great Britain during the first half of the year of 1896, the United States supplied 75 per cent. of the cattle and 45 per cent. of the sheep. The testimony of the department representatives abroad is that entire from the United States arrive in English ports in excellent condition. The tilapia market is especially commended to American shippers, as in that city entitle from the United States compete with the very highest quality of British animals. American packers are not participating in the profits of the growth in consumption of swine flesh and hog products in Great Britain as much as they ought to, because they do not care to meet the British demand; on the other hand, Danish and Canadian packers are increasing their shipments every year. American bacon averages about two cents per pound below continental Irish bacon, and about three cents below English.

The shipment of American horses to England is steadily increasing. The seeds distributed gratuitously by the government for the present fiscal year weighed 1,000,000 lbs. and occupied 30 mail cars. The cost of carrying the seeds in the mail cars was over $100,000. The seeds were sent to 115 congressional districts. Each congressman received enough to plant 160 acres. For the current year at present prices the amount recommended to Congress to be expended

Of course, you know the days I mean? They're Christmas and Thanksgiving! An' on those days I'm very glad That I have kept on living!

But when I go to grandma's house An' smell the turkey cooking, An' see the yellow pumpkins pie! I'll be most tired of looking at it. An' when the dinner is served last At grand Thanksgiving dinner, I'll have a nice meal of pumpkin pie, cranberry tarts, and a dainty rose cake.

The table was laid for ten in the dining room. When Hiram came there would only be the oysters to cook. But Edie was asleep while Maude and Mabel were building an imposing block house on the rug in front of the open fire.

"How happy they are!" the young mother thought. "If I could have a nurse to care for them and leisure to teach them! As it is I've hardly time to listen to their prayers."

Just then a loud cry reached her. The hall door of the house opposite was dashed open and a woman came flying down the steps shrieking for help. It was Mrs. Ashley, and close behind her came the half clothed figure of a man. Edith could see his clenched fist uplifted while dreadful oaths reached her ears.

In a moment the scene was one of confusion. The servants rushed out screaming. Edith hurried to the door in time to see a policeman trip up the frantic man and to hear the nurse girl, who had the Ashley child in her arms, say:

"Edith, I'll be all right in the morning. I wish they'd hurry up and get things quiet. This baby is shivering with the cold."

"Will you bring the little girl in by the fire?" Edith asked.

"I'll be glad to, ma'am, for a minute. Was you scared, or did you know?" the girl continued, as she followed Mrs. Matthews into the sitting-room.

"Knew what?" Edith asked, lighting a lamp. "Who was that man?"

"Land! It was the master, Mr. Ashby," and Norah proceeded to rub little Norah's hands in hers. "I don't believe you understand," she went on. "Is it possible we have lived so near for three months and you never knew that Mr. Ashby had them times whenever he went on a spree? The mistress was watching for him, too, but he most caught her."

After attending to this, Mrs. Matthews had been reaching, and added her cries to Faye's.

"Thankful indeed," Edith said, after a few moments of alternate sobbing and scolding she succeeded in quieting both children. She sat down at the sitting-room window with Faye in her arms and looking at the house across the way.

"The nurse is dressing little Bernice Ashley," she thought. "I can see her. And there is the cook at the door giving the green bay his orders. Mrs. Ashley was at the bell last night. She is sleeping this moment, undisturbed by work or children. Plenty of money, three servants, the entrance to a validated society, yes, I'm sure Mrs. Ashley can truly observe Thanksgiving."

"But, I fear I'm wicked," she went on as Faye nestled her early head on her mother's shoulder. "But I'm so tired of being poor. Of course, I appreciate my husband, my babies, and my easy home. These are just common blessings, though everyone has them and some so many others."

Duke Theodore provides the food from his own farm, which he oversees, while his brother, Prince Ludwig, acts as his steward. Duke Theodore, found that he had not money enough to keep up his charity. After long and anxious consultation with his brothers the honest, kindly prince erected new buildings and opened the house every year for three months as a hotel. It was patronized by many of the royal and noble families of Europe, though it is free to every comer who will conduct himself respectfully and pay for his accommodations.

The toll-gate war is raging fiercely in the Woodford-Jessamine section. The authorities are after the mob who have been lynching the toll gates. The law must be upheld, or every malecontent or anybody else that has a grievance, real or fancied, will be ready to join in a lawless attempt to redress it.

"Wouldn't have it," says John G. Carlisle regarding McKinley pie. Hooray for Carlisle! He goes on to say he is the same sort of a Democrat he always was. That sort doesn't have to be paid for doing its political duty as free citizens loving country above any organization for purposes of gaining office.

A GERRYMANDER may be specified in day, Bradley's legislative call. Turn about may be fair play. What a Republican Legislature would do in a gerrymandering way would on the map resemble a ravin' distract ed specimen of a crazy quilt. Oh yes, the Dems. would do the same thing if political expediency required it.

Mrs. M. M. Givens has sold the Cynthiana Courier to Dr. T. B. Smith and Prof. N. F. Smith. Mrs. Givens was the only lady owning and editing a newspaper in the State. She occupied the editorial tripod with the grace and dignity characteristic of her sex and gained a wide popularity for the 'canner and herself. Dr. T. B. Smith is widely known as the manufacturer of the proprietary medicines bearing his name. He is a big-hearted man, whom to know is to like. Here's hoping that he will make as good a newspaper as he does an Agricultural Limiment and that the Courier may enjoy as great and well deserved a fame.

JAMES L. DAILEMAN, State Democratic Chairman of Nebraska, Bryan's confidential friend and advisor, told before the election with the privilege of publication after the election that Bryan's nomination was the result of a deeply-laid, long-matured plot. Bryan got the privilege of making the closing silver speech. Instead of an impromptu address it was a piece of studied oration rhetoric calculated thoughtfully to carry the crowd by storm, and did it. A peculiarity of his speech is that with the elimination of a few key sentences it could be equally well adapted to the tariff and other political subjects.

A SAN FRANCISCO dispatch tells a fairy story of an Adanless Eden in the St. John, or Hermit, group of South Pacific Islands, where there are no inhabitants but women, the men having all been killed or carried away in the cannibal wars. A ship is said to have anchored near and the brutes, I mean the women, are beggaring.

and into supporting the Populist doctrines of an inferior currency, governmental fiat money, national dis credit, and the other political heresies of Alged, Peifer, Tillman and Bryan, it suffered defeat in Kentucky, as in the nation. If there is any one thing settled, now, by an unparalleled popular majority at an overwhelming election, throughout the United States, it is that the American people will not consent that their well-earned financial position among the great and enlightened nations of the world shall be lowered to a financial fellowship with the inferior races of Asia and South America. Nor will they countenance an assault upon the independence of their judiciary, nor an attack upon the Democratic Executive for sustaining the national credit, and for maintaining law and order in the face of riot. Nor will they permit the splendid national and individual credit of America to be sullied by turning the Government over to the evils of a debased currency, of silver monometallism, and of governmental fiat money. Whatever may be said by those defeated in the late election, these are certainly the lessons that have been taught.

The National Democratic organization was formed to prevent the Democratic party from being delivered over to Populism and being used to elect Populists in the late election; and for the purpose of keeping alive the organization of the true Democratic party, for its great future. It has made an appeal to the quickened patriotism of the Democrats of America; and the appeal has been answered. The overwhelming defeat of Populism was the result. Our country has thus escaped from a great peril; and we should scatter, now, as to prevent a similar peril in future, from it being placed in the undemocratic, reckless and dangerous hands of Populists, by Democratic votes.

Our organization in Kentucky, as throughout the Union, will, of course, be maintained; as the only true Democratic organization. It will continue its endeavor, kindly but earnestly, to induce our fellow Democrats (who may have been led off into supporting undemocratic and Populist principles and candidates on a misapplied idea of regularity, or because they had been parties to the primaries of last spring) to follow, no longer, the heresies that led them to defeat, but to get upon their old Democratic principles and faith. It is our hope and belief that the great mass of Democrats of Kentucky, as of the country, being now relieved from any fancied obligation to longer follow Populist leaders or longer fuse with Populists, will again unite with us on the old principles of Democracy, in which they believe; as laid down in the Democratic platform of 1868 at Indianapolis, and in previous Democratic platforms; under which principles alone the Democratic party has achieved, and can hope to achieve, and deserve, success and power. It must now be evident to all thoughtful and dispassionate men that the Chicago platform is a dead issue in Kentucky; and efforts to revive it further can only end in other disastrous defeats of its supporters, and their political retirement.

There will probably be primaries called in many of the counties of Kentucky by an organization which calls itself the Democratic organization; but which, under the guise of Democracy, has just been defeated in its effort to elect Populist electors on the Populist platforms of St. Louis and Chicago; and which organization is still advocating
